Dining Place

Bangkok's best Peking duck -- Winner: Great Shanghai

At Great Shanghai, once the skin is sliced off, the meat will be stir-fried with garlic or made into duck moo shu.

"Great Shanghai has bland décor and dicey service, but the duck is pure bliss," says Bangkok 101 publisher Mason Florence. "Succulent meat and crispy skin."

The staff take great pains to make sure there isn't a spot of fat left on the skin when it hits your plate, expertly de-fatting it at your table.

Accompanying the duck slices are thin, non-sticky but soft and moist pancakes and what just might be Thailand's best Peking duck sauce -- homemade hoisin with the perfect balance of sweetness and saltiness.

The huge restaurant features authentic Cantonese cuisine, but the Peking duck is what everyone comes for.

648 Sukhumvit Road soi 24, BTS: Phrompong. Tel: +66 (0)2 258-7042. Open daily for lunch 11 a.m.-2 p.m. and dinner 6-10 p.m.

Bangkok's best Seafood-- Sortong Pochana Restaurant

Bangkok is renowned for its gourmet food at reasonably low prices. This blog covers a wide range of restaurants in Bangkok and occasionally in other provinces (Chiang Mai, Pattaya, Phuket). From street vendors to luxurious restaurants - From mouthwatering dishes to eye widening meals, all can be found here. This blog will take you to experience the exotic food you rarely find in your area. Feel free to leave comments or suggestion.

The restaurant was way too crowded and hot. Atmosphere was awfully hectic just like any typical Chinese restaurant. Let's move on to talk about the food. They had all the regular seafood; shrimp, clams, crab, squid, and other meat choices. What stunned me the most was the price, since I have read reviews about this place and someone said that it was pricey. 2829-31 Rama 4 Rd. Klongteoy, Klonton, Bangkok Tel: +66 (0) 2 258 0118. Open daily for 16:00 ~ 1:30
